
PICENUM SERAPHICUM

RIVISTA DI STUDI STORICI E FRANCESCANI

ANNO XXXIV (2020)

NUOVA SERIE

PROVINCIA PICENA “S. GIACOMO DELLA MARCA” DEI FRATI MINORI

eum edizioni università di macerata

PICENUM SERAPHICUM

RIVISTA DI STUDI STORICI E FRANCESCANI

Ente proprietario

Provincia Picena “San Giacomo della Marca” dei Frati Minori
via S.Francesco 52
60035 Jesi (AN)

in convenzione con

Dipartimento di Studi Umanistici-Lingue, Mediazione, Storia, Lettere, Filosofia
corso Cavour, 2
62100 Macerata

Consiglio scientifico

Felice Accrocca, Giuseppe Avarucci, Francesca Bartolacci, Simonetta Bernardi †, Monica Bocchetta, Rosa Marisa Borraccini, Giammario Borri, Vincenzo Brocanelli, Giuseppe Buffon, David Burr, Alvaro Cacciotti, Alberto Cadili, Maela Carletti, Maria Ciotti, Mario Conetti, Jacques Dalarun, Maria Consiglia De Matteis, Carlo Dolcini, Kaspar Elm, Christoph Flüeler, György Galamb, Gábor Györiványi, Robert E. Lerner, Jean Claude Maire-Vigueur, Alfonso Marini, Enrico Menestò, Grado G. Merlo, Jürgen Miethke, Antal Molnár, Massimo Morroni, Lauge O. Nielsen, Roberto Paciocco, Letizia Pellegrini, Luigi Pellegrini, Gian Luca Potestà, Leonardo Sileo, Andrea Tabarroni, Katherine Tachau, Giacomo Todeschini

Consiglio direttivo

Roberto Lambertini (direttore), Francesca Bartolacci (codirettrice), Monica Bocchetta, Maela Carletti, p. Lorenzo Turchi

Comitato di Redazione

Alessandra Baldelli, p. Marco Buccolini, p. Ferdinando Campana, Laura Calvaresi, p. Simone Giampieri, p. Gabriele Lazzarini, Luca Marcelli, Gioele Marozzi, Chiara Melatini, p. Valentino Natalini, Annamaria Raia

Redazione

Dipartimento di Studi Umanistici-Lingue, Mediazione, Storia, Lettere, Filosofia
corso Cavour, 2
62100 Macerata
redazione.picenum@unimc.it

Direttore responsabile

p. Ferdinando Campana

Editore

eum edizioni università di macerata
Corso della Repubblica, 51 – 62100 Macerata
tel (39) 733 258 6081 fax (39) 733 258 6086
<http://eum.unimc.it>
info.ceum@unimc.it

eum edizioni università di macerata

Indice

3 Editoriale

Studi

- 7 Chris Schabel
Francesco d'Appignano, Lector in Naples in 1321
- 13 Andrea Nannini
Idee di perfezione divina. La dottrina delle idee tra Giovanni Duns Scoto e Francesco d'Appignano
- 35 Francesco Fiorentino
Idee divine secondo Francesco di Appignano
- 53 Marina Fedeli
La relazione della creatura a Dio tra dipendenza positiva e negativa in Francesco d'Appignano
- 71 Fabio Zanin
La predicabilità dell'essere in Francesco d'Appignano. La relazione creatore/creatura tra univocità ed equivocità
- 89 Tiziana Suarez-Nani
Una sfida alla fisica aristotelica: Francesco di Appignano e la multi-localizzazione dei corpi
- 105 Alice Lamy
L'ombre du platonisme mathématique critique dans la conception des êtres quantitatifs absous chez Francesco d'Appignano (l'infini, le temps, le nombre)
- 123 Antonio Petagine
Immortalità dell'anima: la posizione di Francesco d'Appignano all'interno del dibattito francescano tra il XIII e il XIV secolo

- 141 Maela Carletti
Ad utilitatem communis: i libri iurium marchigiani del Duecento tra ideologia e pragmatismo

Note

- 157 Alessandro Giostra
Cecco d'Ascoli e i motori celesti
- 173 Chris Schabel, Roberto Lambertini
New Evidence for the Reception of the Michaelist Treatise Allegationes de potestate imperiali (1338-39): The Parvum Decretum of Pierre Ceffons and the Somnium Viridarii
- 179 Michele Spadaccini, Philipp Burdy
Das Provinciale ordinis fratrum minorum (Italien, 14. Jh.). Neuedition und Analyse: Mitteilungen zu einem Forschungsprojekt
- 189 Francesca Ghergo, Roberto Lamponi
Summer School “Scuola di Paleografia e Storia (SPeS)” Potenza Picena
- 195 Maela Carletti
Fucine della memoria a San Ginesio: edizione 2020

Schede

- 201 Roberto Lambertini, Francesco, i suoi frati e l'etica dell'economia: un'introduzione. Francis, his Friars and Economic Ethics: an Introduction, Cisam, Spoleto 2020, 96 pp. (M. Carletti); Paolo Evangelisti, Dopo Francesco, oltre il mito. I frati Minori fra Terra Santa ed Europa (XIII-XV secolo), Viella, Roma 2020, 295 pp. (A. Baldelli); Wilhelm von Ockham, De iuribus Romani Imperii - Das Recht von Kaiser und Reich (III.2 Dialogus), tradotto e introdotto da Jürgen Miethke, 2 voll., Freiburg-Basel-Wien 2020, 829 pp. (R. Lambertini); Sylvain Parent, Le pape et les rebelles. Trois procès pour rébellion et hérésie au temps de Jean XXII (Marche d'Ancône, Romagne, Lombardie), (Sources et documents publiés par l'École française de Rome, 9), l'École française de Rome, Roma 2019, 744 pp. (R. Lambertini); Francesco Di Ciaccia, Guerra carestia peste con i frati cappuccini nell'opera manzoniana, Milano, Edizioni Biblioteca Francescana, 2020 (Centro Studi Cappuccini Lombardi. Nuova serie, 6), 549 pp. (G. Marozzi).

Note

New Evidence for the Reception of the Michaelist Treatise Allegationes de potestate imperiali (1338-39): The Parvum Decretum of Pierre Ceffons and the Somnium Viridarii

Chris Schabel, Roberto Lambertini

The so-called Allegationes de potestate imperiali is among many treatises composed by Franciscans who, under the leadership of Michael of Cesena, rebelled against Pope John XXII and supported Emperor Louis of Bavaria¹. William of Ockham and Bonagratia of Bergamo are mentioned in some manuscripts as its authors, while the later Chronica de ducibus Bavariae even assigns the Allegationes to Francis of Marchia and Ockham together². These attributions should not be taken at face value, however, as the British scholar Hilary Seton Offler has shown. In 1986 in the venerable Deutsches Archiv, Offler published one of his few articles devoted to the *Allegationes*³, arguing at length and convincingly that it is impossible to ascribe this work to a single author, although people active at the court of Louis of Bavaria, such as Bonagratia and Ockham, likely exerted some influence on the various versions. Offler designates what he considers to be the first redaction as “G”, while he calls one of the later redactions “Z”. The latter version is a reworking and expansion of “G” inserted into the collection of texts with commentary known as the Chronicle of Nicholas the Minorite, but extant in just two of the manuscripts of the Chronicle (Paris, BnF, lat. 5154 and BAV,

¹ Excerpts from this work were published in R. Scholz, Unbekannte kirchenpolitische Streitschriften aus der Zeit Ludwigs des Bayerns (1327-1354), Teil II: Texte, Rome 1914, pp. 417-431.

² Chronica de ducibus Bavariae, in Bayerische Chroniken des XIV. Jahrhunderts, ed. by G. Leidinger (MGH Scriptores rerum Germanicarum, 19), Hannover-Leipzig 1918, p. 164; Available also online URL= <https://www.dmgm.de/mgh_ss_rer_germ_19/index.htm#page/164/mode/1up> (last visited 15 november 2020)

³ H.S Offler, Zum Verfasser der ‘Allegationes de potestate imperiali’ (1338), «Deutsches Archiv für Erforschung des Mittelalters», 42 (1986), pp. 555-619; at p. 555. Offler thanks Jürgen Miethke, who had mediated the publication of the article in the prestigious journal of the Monumenta Germaniae Historica, for his encouragement and assistance. The paper has been reprinted with the original pagination in H.S Offler, Church and Crown in the Fourteenth Century. Studies in European History and Political Thought, ed. by A.I. Doyle, Aldershot et alii 2000, study no. VI.

Vat. lat. 4008). According to Offler, the Allegationes are a “collective enterprise” of the Michaelist dissidents, although redaction “G” seems to be influenced more by Bonagratia of Bergamo’s style and attitude, while “Z” reveals a more distinctive Ockhamistic flavor⁴.

Offler died in 1991, but his edition of the Allegationes was not published in Ockham’s Opera Politica until more than a decade after the Deutsches Archiv article⁵. In the meantime, another entreprise was almost independently brought to an end. In 1996 Gedeon Gál (with David Flood’s help for the historical commentary and the English summaries of the documents) edited the so-called Chronicle of Nicholas the Minorite, in a Franciscan Institute volume that was intended to be “a Source Book”⁶. The last piece of the collection of documents constitutes the Allegationes (version “Z”), although Gál preferred the title Tractatus de potestate papae, most probably because he found it in the manuscript of the Chronicle on which he based his edition, namely Paris, Bibliothèque nationale de France, lat. 5154. As Jürgen Miethke remarked in his balanced but critical review article, Offler’s contribution had been completely ignored⁷.

Volume IV of Ockham’s Opera Politica, containing both authentic works of the Venerabilis Inceptor and some dubia (among which Offler included the Allegationes), was published posthumously under Offler’s name in 1997, one year after Gál and Flood had completed their task. Today the Allegationes treatise is therefore available in two printed editions: Gál transcribed redaction “Z” under the title Tractatus de potestate papae from the most reliable witness of the last section of the so-called Chronicle of Nicholas the Minorite, while Offler offered a critical edition of the text, in which the apparatus criticus records the variants between redactions “G” and “Z”.

In the context of Chris Schabel’s wider project concerning the Cistercian Pierre Ceffons⁸, we have identified a new witness to the Allegationes: Ceffons’ Parvum Decretum

⁴ Offler, Zum Verfasser cit., pp. 616-617: here Offler argues persuasively that some passages in redaction “Z” are closer to Ockham’s position. The question of the authorship of this redaction, however, remains open; see also Id., Introduction to Allegationes de potestate imperiali, in William of Ockham, Opera politica, IV, ed. by H.S. Offler, Oxford et alii 1997, pp. 362-363.

⁵ Allegationes de potestate imperiali, ibid., pp.367-444.

⁶ Nicolaus Minorita: Chronica. Documentation on Pope John XXII, Michael of Cesena and the Poverty of Christ with Summaries in English. A Source Book, ed. by G. Gál e D. Flood, St. Bonaventure NY, 1996.

⁷ J. Miethke, Der erste vollständige Druck der sogenannten “Chronik des Nicolaus Minorita” (von 1330-1338). Bemerkungen zur Präsentation eines “Farbbuches” des 14. Jahrhunderts, «Deutsches Archiv für Erforschung des Mittelalters», 54 (1998), pp. 623-642, in part. p. 636; for further information on the manuscripts tradition and an attempt at a new interpretation of the Chronicle, see H.J. Mierau, Die sog. ‘Chronica n. minorita’: Rezeptionswege und das sich wandelnde Bild von Johannes XXII., in Papst Johannes XXII. Konzepte und Verfahren seines Pontifikats, hrsg von H.-J.Schmidt e M.-Rohde, Berlin-Boston 2014, pp. 427-465; this article deserves attention, since some of Mierau’s claims need a critical examination. As she does not directly deal with the Allegationes, however, a discussion would be inappropriate for the present note.

⁸ C. Schabel, Pierre Ceffons et le déterminisme radical au temps de peste noire, Paris 2019, p. 57, and Id., Pierre Ceffons, in Encyclopedia of Medieval Philosophy, ed. by H. Lagerlund, Dordrecht 2020 <http://doi-org-443.webvpn.fjmu.edu.cn/10.1007/978-94-024-1665-7_558Z> (last visited 15 November 2020). On Ceffons and his works, see also D. Trapp, Peter Ceffons of Clairvaux, «Recherches de théologie ancienne et médiévale», 24 (1957), pp. 101-154, and C. Schabel, Lucifer princeps tenebrarum... The Epistola Luciferi and Other Correspondence of the Cistercian Pierre Ceffons (fl. 1348-1353), «Vivarium», 56 (2008), pp. 126-175, esp. pp. 140-145.

de potestate sancti Petri, written in the early 1350s and, like the Allegationes itself, also incorporated into a larger work, in this case in Ceffons' questions on Book IV of the Sentences, based on lectures originally delivered at the Bernardins in Paris in 1348–49⁹. Accordingly, the Parvum Decretum exhibits the structure of a typical scholastic quaestio, centered around the problem of the scope of papal authority. More precisely, Ceffons asks whether the authority of the Supreme Pontiff in temporal matters is somehow extended over the secular princes¹⁰. The text is divided into three distinctions, the second of which is devoted to the arguments of the opponents of papal claims in the temporal sphere. Part of this second distinction consists of the rationes that Ceffons claims to have found in a quire (quaternus). Unlike in most cases, Ceffons is uncertain of the authorship of the rationes, but he thinks that Marsilius of Padua or John of Jandun was responsible. In reality, it turns out that Ceffons quotes passages from the Allegationes.

A comparison demonstrates that the quotations are reproduced mostly verbatim:

1)

Allegationes , ed. Offler, p. 376	Ceffons, Parvum Decretum ¹¹
... quoniam temporale dominium universalis iurisdictionis derogat et obviat Christi et apostolicae paupertati, humilitati, charitati ac etiam aequitati et honestati. Derogat, inquam, Christi et apostolicae paupertati. Quoniam paupertas Christi et apostolica consistit in voluntaria renuntiatione et expropriatione regni et imperii temporalis ac cuiuslibet terreni dominii.	Dominum universalis iurisdictionis derogat et obviat apostolicae paupertati, caritati et honestati, humilitati. Derogat inquam, apostolicae paupertati quia paupertas apostolica consistit in voluntaria renuntiatione et expropriatione regni et imperii temporalis et cuiuscumque terreni dominii.

2)

Allegationes , ed. Offler, p. 381	Ceffons, Parvum Decretum
Tertio ostenditur quod tale regnum et imperium temporale et terrenum obviat Christi et apostolicae charitati. Quoniam Christi et apostolicae charitatis erat principes saeculi ad fidem catholicam attrahere et inducere, et non eos a fide avertere et retrahere. Si autem Christus et Apostoli regnum et imperium totius orbis sibi vindicassent, tunc ipsi a fide principes saeculi, qui sua regna et imperia non libenter dimitebant avertisserent et retraxissent.	Tertio tale regnum et imperium obviat apostolicae caritati, quoniam apostolicae caritatis erat principes saeculi ad fidem catholicam attrahere et inducere, et non eos a fide avertere et retrahere. Si autem Christus et apostoli regnum et imperium totius orbis sibi vindicassent, tunc Christus a fide principes saeculi qui bona regna et imperia non libenter dimitebant avertisserent et retraxissent.

⁹ Schabel, Pierre Ceffons cit., pp. 50–54.

¹⁰ For an excellent discussion of the debates on papal power from Aquinas to Ockham, see J. Miethke, De potestate pape. Die päpstliche Amtskompetenz im Widerstreit der politischen Theorie von Thomas von Aquin bis Wilhelm von Ockham, Tübingen 2000; Italian translation under the title Ai Confini del potere. Il dibattito sulla potestas papale da Tommaso d'Aquino a Guglielmo d'Ockham, Padova 2005.

¹¹ This text used for these comparisons was established by Chris Schabel on the basis of the entire manuscript tradition and will be available in our forthcoming edition of the Parvum Decretum.

As mentioned above, the tradition of the Allegationes can be divided in two main versions: Ceffons's quire was closer to "Z", that is, the later revision inserted into the Chronicle of Nicholas the Minorite. A comparison thus shows that, when the two versions diverge, the Parvum Decretum follows rather "Z":

3)

Allegationes , ed. Offler, p. 377	Version "Z", ed. Gál, p. 1172	Ceffons, Parvum Decretum
Renuntiatio autem universalis dominii bonorum temporalium et retentio universalis dominii regni vel imperii temporalis paupertati Christi et apostolicae obviat et repugnat. Quare retentio universalis dominii regni vel imperii temporalis paupertati Christi et apostolicae obviat et repugnat. Unde beatus Hilarius super psalmo 69 dicit sic: "Egenus et pauper sum; Dominus adiuvat me. Neque regis dignitati neque regni opulentiae paupertatis ac inopiae professio congruit, sed eius qui ut nos ditisceremus peperem se praestitit, cui ne ad Paschae quidem cenam nisi quesita et aliena domus fuerit. Aduare se itaque rogat. In forma enim servi, oboediens usque ad mortem crucis factus est". Haec Hilarius.	Renuntiatio autem universalis dominii bonorum temporalium et retentio universalis dominii ipsorum directe ad invicem obviant et repugnant , quare universalis retentio universalis regni et imperii temporalis paupertati Christi et apostolicae obviat et repugnat. Unde beatus Hilarius super psalmo 69 dicit sic: "Egenus et pauper sum, dominus adiuvat me. Nec est regni dignitatis nec est regni opulentiae paupertati atque inopiae professio congruit" ¹² .	Renuntiatio autem universalis dominii bonorum temporalium et retentio universalis dominii ipsorum obviant recte ad invicem et repugnant . Quare retentio universalis dominii universalis dominii regni vel imperii temporalis apostolicae paupertatis obviare et repugnare videtur. Unde beatus Hilarius super Psalmo 69 dicit sic: "Egenus et pauper sum, dominus adiuvat me. Nec est regni dignitatis nec est regni opulentiae paupertati atque inopiae professio congruit".
Item, illa, quae Apostoli ex summa perfectione virtutis semel reliquerunt...	Item, illa quae Apostoli ex summa perfectione virtutis semel reliquerunt...	Et infra: "Aduvari se itaque rogat in forma servi, cum oboediens usque crucis mortem factus est". Hec Hilarius. Item, illa quae apostoli ex summa perfectione virtutis semel reliquerunt...

4)

Allegationes , ed. Offler, p. 380	Version "Z", ed. Gál, p. 1174	Ceffons, Parvum Decretum
...terrores minime timere, pro veritate adversa diligere, prospera formidanda declinare, quia et ista saepe per tumorem cor inquinant et illa per dolorem purgant. Haec sanctus Gregorius.	...terrores minime timere, pro veritate adversa diligere, prospera formidando declinare, quia et ista saepe per timorem cor inquinant et illa per dolorem purgant. Haec Gregorius. Item, beatus Augustinus Super Psalmos exponens illum versiculum Et in cathedra pestilentiae non sedit, dicit sic:	...terrores minime timere, pro veritate adversa diligere, prospera formidando declinare, quia ista saepe per timorem coquinant et illa per dolorem purgant. Haec Gregorius. Beatus quoque Augustinus super Psalmis, exponens illum versiculum Et in cathedra pestilentiae non sedit dicit sic:

¹² This sentence is grammatically flawed, probably because Ceffons or a scribe misread "nec₃" as "nec est" rather than "neque". The Somnium Viridarii (see below) copies Ceffons' text, but, perhaps realizing the faulty grammar, the Somnium replaces "congruit" with "etc." and the French translation then opts for paraphrase.

Item, beatus Augustinus in epistola ad fratres Madaurenses...	“Regnum terrenum cum superbia noluit”. Haec Augustinus. Item, idem Augustinus ad fratres Madaurenses...	“Regnum terrenum cum superbia noluit”. Haec Augustinus. Item Augustinus in epistola ad fratres Madaurenses...
---	---	---

As a matter of fact, Ceffons does not reproduce the text of the Allegationes in its totality. A closer examination reveals that the quotations found in the Parvum Decretum derive from only two of the seven articuli into which the text is divided in Offler's edition. To make a quantitative comparison easier, while the whole treatise occupies 77 printed pages, Ceffons inserts into his work texts deriving from the first 16 pages of Offler's edition. The relationship is quite similar vis-à-vis the Gál-Flood edition: the text covers 74 pages, but the Parvum Decretum reproduces portions of text that are contained on 14 pages.

It is possible that Ceffons adopted a very selective attitude toward the text, limiting himself to arguments that he found more relevant to the purposes of his quaestio. Given the distribution of the quotations, however, all concentrated in the first part of the treatise, it is more likely that the quaternus that came into the hands of our Cistercian monk already contained only a part of the Allegationes.

The critical edition of the Parvum Decretum, which is currently in progress, has therefore brought to light a new, although fragmentary, witness of the Allegationes de potestate imperiali. This discovery illustrates how a treatise produced at the court of Louis of Bavaria in support of his policies circulated more widely than one would assume solely on the basis of the extant manuscripts (Offler's editions is based on six witnesses¹³, to which a paraphrase must be added). In the early 1350s, just after the Black Death, when the Michaelist rebellion against John XXII was history and its main figures had already passed away, a Cistercian theologian active in Paris had at his disposition the Allegationes or at least a fragment thereof. Although he did not know who exactly had drafted the text (and in fact made a very imprecise conjecture), he considered the arguments contained in it as representative of the anti-papal position.

The discovery of this new witness is not so much important from a philological point of view, since the text transmitted by the Parvum Decretum is not likely to be useful for improving Offler's editorial work, but rather as evidence for the lasting influence of the Allegationes. We have identified three surviving copies of the Parvum Decretum, one of which was in the papal library in Avignon, in addition a fourth in the sole extant copy of the Ceffons' questions on the Sentences. Moreover, in a forthcoming article, we will demonstrate that, through Ceffons' Parvum Decretum, in the 1370s some passages of the Allegationes were inserted by Evrart de Tremaugon into his Somnium Viridarii among the arguments put forward by the miles. Specifically, the bulk of 18 chapters of book II of the Somnium, almost 200 lines, come verbatim or paraphrased from distinction 2, chapter 2 of Ceffons' Parvum Decretum, material itself taken verbatim or paraphrased from the Allegationes. In his seminal article about the sources of the Somnium, Carl Müller had guessed that the passages in question derived from the literary output of the Munich dissidents¹⁴, but pointed to a rather vague resemblance with Michael of Cesena's *Litterae deprecatoriae*¹⁵. The very texts he inserts in a long footnote, however, are taken from the Allegationes. The Somnium itself survives in seven manuscripts and an early printing, but thanks to the Somnium's popular translation into the vernacular as Le Songe du Verger, almost all of the arguments from the Allegationes that had made their way into the Somnium became widely available to an audience that could not read Latin¹⁶, expanding, albeit tacitly, the influence of the Michaelist text.

¹³ Unfortunately, there are a couple of errors on p. 362 of Offler's introduction to his edition: 'Vat. lat. 48' must be corrected to '4008', while 'ff. 2r-211r', should be 'ff. 200r-211r'.

¹⁴ C. Müller, Über das Somnium Viridarii, Beitrag zur Geschichte der Literatur über Kirche und Staat im XIV. Jahrhundert, «Zeitschrift für Kirchenrecht», 14 (1877), pp. 134-205, in especially pp. 143-146; Müller admits, however, that the use of Michael of Cesena's letter «nicht so wörtlich ist» (p. 143, note 7).

¹⁵ Schnerb-Lièvre is aware of the weakness of Müller's conjecture: Introduction to Somnium Viridarii, ed. by M. Schnerb-Lièvre, 2 vols., Paris 1995, vol. I, p. xxx. Michael of Cesena's Litterae Deprecatoriae are printed in M. Goldast, Monarchia S. Romani Imperii, II, Frankfurt 1614, pp. 1344-1360. On this text, see C. Dolcini, Il pensiero politico di Michele da Cesena 1328-1338, in Id., Crisi di poteri e politologia in crisi. Da Sinibaldo Fieschi a Guglielmo d'Ockham, Bologna 1988, especially pp. 152 and 199-212, with reference to previous scholarship.

¹⁶ For example, the text used above for comparison number 3 is copied into the Somnium Viridarii, II, c. LV, nn. 2-3, ed. by Schnerb-Lièvre, vol. II, p. 30 (repeating Ceoffons' errors in copying the Allegationes' quotation from Hilary), and then translated into French (the chapter numbers do not always correspond) in Le Songe du Vergier, II, c. LIII, nn. 2-3, ed. by M. Schnerb-Lièvre, 2 vols., Paris 1982, vol. II, p. 41 (cutting the flawed Hilary quotation short and resorting to paraphrase). The chapters in question are the odd-numbered chapters XXXIX-LXXIII of book II of the Somnium (pp. 22-40), mostly translated within the odd-numbered chapters XXXIX-LXVII of the Songe (pp. 30-52).